

(UBS)

VIDEO: Are Gen Z already thinking about retirement?

01 August 2024, 1:49 pm CEST, written by UBS Editorial Team

For Gen Z, retirement may feel like a distant dream, but that doesn't mean it's too soon to save for it. Investing early in your career is paying yourself in the future.

CLICK HERE to watch the full video.

With the average age of retirement in the United States of people born after 1960 being 67 years old according to the government's Social Security Website, those in their 20s are likely not thinking about 40 plus years down the road, although we think perhaps they should be.

Setting aside a portion of your hard-earned paychecks can be difficult, but the benefits of a larger retirement nest egg in the future will outweigh the cash in your pocket right now, especially for Gen Z.

For more videos like this, visit the UBS Studios homepage.

Important information

As a firm providing wealth management services to clients, UBS Financial Services, Inc is registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) as an investment adviser and a broker-dealer, offering both investment advisory and brokerage services. Advisory services and brokerage services are separate and distinct, differ in material ways and are governed by different laws and separate contracts. It is important that you carefully read the agreements and disclosures UBS provides to you about the products or services offered. For more information, please visit our website at www.ubs.com/workingwithus.

© UBS 2024. All rights reserved. UBS Financial Services Inc. is a subsidiary of UBS AG. Member FINRA/SIPC.

There are two sources of UBS research. Reports from the first source, UBS CIO Global Wealth Management, are designed for individual investors and are produced by UBS Global Wealth Management (which includes UBS Financial Services Inc. and UBS International Inc.). The second research source is UBS Group Research, whose primary business focus is institutional investors. The two sources operate independently and may therefore have different recommendations. The various research content provided does not take into account the unique investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs of any specific individual investor. If you have any questions, please consult your Financial Advisor. UBS Financial Services Inc. is a subsidiary of UBS AG and an affiliate of UBS International Inc.