Macro thoughts and portfolio themes

The US shows strong results coming out of Q1 2021 as vaccine progress and reopenings accelerate, largely outpacing expectations.

The US shows strong results coming out of Q1 2021 as vaccine progress and reopenings accelerate, largely outpacing expectations. Outside of the US, many geographies are still early cycle with recoveries moving at different speeds. Notably, Europe and emerging markets may outperform if they catch-up with the US and east Asia. Unfortunately, COVID cases continue to rise on a global basis, driven by emerging markets. The longer the pandemic lasts in any region subjects the global population to the risk of future variants that can evade vaccines.

The message from global central banks is clear, consistent and supportive. US fiscal stimulus in Q1 was robust and at the higher range of what investors anticipated. However, future support and spending, including for infrastructure, will likely be tied to measures offsetting some of the deficit impact, such as increased taxes. While it's clear higher inflation will be tolerated in the US, market participants will closely watch all official and ad hoc statements from the Fed to discern future policy direction for the timing and pace of rate hikes. The Fed and ECB have meetings in June that could offer guidance. In addition to an overall bullish commodity cycle, rising input costs due to strained supply chains and tariffs, and pressure on labor costs due to pandemic-related shortages / relocations could accelerate the timelines. Following successes around COVID containment, and strongly rebounding growth, China began removing stimulus and rolling back credit availability. Downstream effects on emerging economies and commodity producers will be in focus. Some EM central banks may also hike to keep pace with the rise in Treasuries.

The market appears to be in a period of consolidation after Q1 2021's swift but volatile moves in rates, US dollar and cyclical / value equities. Longer-term, we believe this is a positive development for fundamental strategies and may allow for a two-sided opportunity set to emerge. Some of the excesses in the marketplace, including those driven by retail activity, seem to be settling down. The rate of money supply expansion should also slow. Overall, we are cautious on equity beta and have some downside concerns if hiccups were to occur. The positive news in the US has largely been pulled forward with the stimulus and priced into lofty valuations. The Biden administration has shown highly assertive stances on foreign policy, which could introduce some geopolitical surprises. Cyber security continues to be an ever-present tail risk. Additionally, the new administration still has some final regulatory appointments / confirmations for positions such as the FTC and DOJ Antitrust Division heads, which can potentially impact the technology sector.

The market appears to be in a period of consolidation after Q1 2021's swift but volatile moves in rates, US dollar and cyclical / value equities.

Portfolio positioning

We continue to expect market volatility to subside as economies normalize and reopen, allowing a return to fundamentals that can drive long and short alpha.

- Our strategy allocations remain largely unchanged. We favor Equity Hedged to take advantage of a return to fundamentals and Trading to capitalize on broad moves related to the uneven pace of re-opening.
- Additionally, we continue to look for pockets of mispriced opportunities in Credit and sub-strategies with persistent volatility in Relative Value.
- At the beginning of Q2 2021, we increased our platform allocation to the SPAC (special purpose acquisition companies) strategy. We are researching how to best access the robust corporate events opportunity set.

⊕ Positive Outlook ⊖ Negative Outlook

Equity Event ⊕

- With fiscal stimulus and re-opening trades now largely priced in, we expect beta tailwinds and rotational pressures to ease presenting the opportunity to reclaim alpha through shorts and increased dispersion
- Increased M&A activity and the emergence of SPAC acquisitions leads to opportunities in other non-merger transactions: special situations, including pre- and post-event equity, spin-offs and stub trades

Corporate Long / Short ⊖

- Corporate credit markets have largely recovered, however, managers are now focused on shorting duration-sensitive issuers as rate risk—rather than credit risk—is now of greater concern

Capital Structure / Volatility Arb ⊕

- Within SPACs, we believe meaningful pockets of value and mispriced optionality with exceptional convexity are being overlooked as market indicators begin to normalize over time

Fixed Income Relative Value ⊖

- We continue to maintain a meaningful allocation within FIRV strategies. We believe that managers with a diversified approach by region and sub-strategy (bond / swap RV, inflation, mortgages, cross-market and macro) are best positioned, and that Macro RV will likely outperform Micro RV approaches, such as cash / futures basis

Strategies

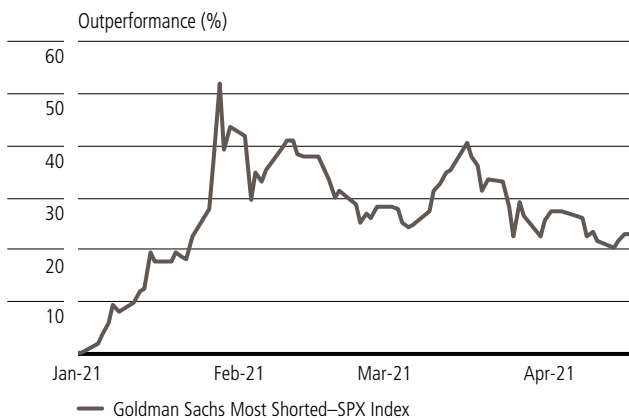

Equity Hedged

HFS plans to maintain our recently increased allocations to Equity Hedged and will seek to position portfolios in regions and sectors with persistent volatility and higher dispersion. Our preference today is for US-focused holdings. With fiscal stimulus and reopening trades now largely priced in, we expect beta tailwinds and rotational pressures to ease, leaving the focus on stock fundamentals. Recent sizeable sell-offs provided an opportunity to tactically allocate capital to some of our favorite areas, such as biotech. We continue to overweight APAC and Greater China. We believe the relative economic momentum in Europe has room to improve over the next 3 to 6 months.

Credit / Income

Within Credit / Income, our core allocations are to ABS, Agency MBS and Corporate Long / Short sub-strategies. ABS and Agency MBS are meant to provide HFS's portfolios with carry and a consistent return profile while simultaneously minimizing duration. The Corporate Long / Short sub-strategy is designed to be tactical and should provide a long volatility return profile that is complementary to carry-oriented investments. HFS trimmed exposure to Corporate Long-Biased somewhat in Q1 2021 as high yield spreads compressed materially and we believe other credit asset classes offer more attractive carry. In Distressed, HFS does not plan to add exposure, as CCC-rated debt has outperformed and the pace of defaults has slowed, thus limiting the opportunity set to one-off and thematic investments.

Relative Value

Our allocations to Relative Value (RV) sub-strategies remain stable aside from a tactical increase to SPAC strategies, which we categorize within Capital Structure / Volatility Arbitrage. The institutionalization of the SPAC asset class accelerated over the past 12 months. We believe that SPACs as a capital formation vehicle are here to stay and that higher quality sponsors will continue to strike interesting deals as an alternative to traditional IPOs. Following a marginal downgrade to Capital Structure / Volatility Arbitrage for Q1 2021, we are restoring our previous positive view based on the flood of convertible bond new issuance and more attractive valuations. Though our outlook for Merger Arbitrage improved due to wider spread levels and increased risk utilization among managers, we do not plan to actively increase our allocations. We expect that event-focused Equity Hedged and Multi-Strategy managers can increase exposure within their funds if warranted.

Trading

HFS has an overall positive outlook on Trading and expect discretionary macro managers and commodity-focused traders to capitalize on the volatility and realignments brought by global reopening. After a profitable period where consensus trades performed mostly as expected, DM and EM managers reduced risk levels slightly but remain bullish on a strong growth and inflationary outlook, led by the US. Portfolio construction and trade timing are likely to take greater importance in coming months. We appear to be in a bull cycle for commodities which tends to benefit directional managers; however, there are also likely to be alpha opportunities for relative value approaches due to sufficient dispersion.

Endnotes

Index descriptions

The use of indices is for illustrative purposes only.

Goldman Sachs Most Shorted Rolling Index (GSCBMSAL)

An equally weighted basket of the 50 highest short interest names in the Russell 3000. Names in the basket have a market capitalization greater than $1billion. This basket is updated on a monthly basis.

BofA Merrill Lynch US High Yield Master II (H0A0) Index

Tracks the performance of below investment grade US dollar-denominated corporate debt publicly issued in the US domestic market. Qualifying securities must have a below investment grade rating (based on a composite of Moodys, S&P and Fitch) and an investment grade rated country of risk. In addition, qualifying securities must have at least one year remaining term to maturity, a fixed coupon schedule and a minimum amount outstanding of USD 100 million. Original issue zero coupon bonds, 'global' securities (debt issued simultaneously in the Eurobond and U. S. domestic bond markets), 144a securities and pay-in-kind securities, including toggle notes, qualify for inclusion in the index. Callable perpetual securities qualify provided they are at least one year from the first call date. Fixed-to-floating rate securities also qualify provided they are callable within the fixed rate period and are at least one year from the last call prior to the date the bond transitions from a fixed to a floating rate security. DRD-eligible and defaulted securities are excluded from the index.

The Standard and Poor's 500 Index (S&P500) is a capitalization-weighted index of 500 stocks. The index is designed to measure performance of the broad domestic economy through changes in the aggregate market value of 500 stocks representing all major industries.

CPI

Consumer prices (CPI) are measure of prices paid by consumers for a market basket of consumer goods and services. The yearly (or monthly) growth rates represent the inflation rate.

Breakeven rates

The rates are United States breakeven inflation rates. They are calculated by subtracting the real yield of the inflation linked maturity curve from the yield of the closest nominal Treasury maturity. The result is the implied inflation rate for the term of the stated maturity.

Risk considerations

The strategies described herein are speculative and entail substantial risks which may place your capital at risk. An investment in these strategies includes the risks inherent in an investment in securities, as well as specific risks associated with limited liquidity, the use of leverage, short sales, options, futures, derivative instruments, investments in non-US securities and illiquid investments. The Fund invests largely in other unregulated hedge funds. Such a portfolio of hedge funds may increase an investor's volatility for potential losses or gains.

A particular manager of any strategy, from time to time, may invest a substantial portion of the assets managed in an industry sector. As a result, the manager's investment portfolio may be subject to greater risk and volatility than if investments had been made in the securities of a broader range of issues. There can be no assurances that any particular strategy (hedging or otherwise) will be successful or that it will employ such strategies with respect to all or any portion of its portfolio. These strategies can be highly illiquid, are not required to provide periodic pricing or valuation to investors, and may involve complex tax strategies.

The strategies may be highly leveraged and the volatility of the price of its interests may be great. The fees and expenses charged by any individual manager of a strategy may substantially offset any trading profit.

It is important that clients understand the ways in which we conduct business, that they carefully read the agreements and disclosures that we provide to them about the products or services we offer. A small number of our financial advisors are not permitted to offer advisory services to you, and can only work with you directly as UBS broker-dealer representatives. Your financial advisor will let you know if this is the case and, if you desire advisory services, will be happy to refer you to another financial advisor who can help you. Our agreements and disclosures will inform you about whether we and our financial advisors are acting in our capacity as an investment adviser or broker-dealer. For more information, please review the PDF document at ubs.com/relationshipsummary.
