For periods greater than 1 year, annualised returns are used to calculate the value added and the tracking error.

Economic overview

The euro climbed as elections to the EU's parliament in May resulted in smaller gains for populist parties than had been feared. However, as the quarter ended there were difficult discussions around key senior appointments to major European Union and ECB postings, which are to be filled later this year.

ECB president Draghi also adopted a more dovish tone, pointing to signs of economic softness and pledging additional stimulus if inflation expectations continued to lag.

While the Eurozone economy picked up more than expected in the first quarter of the year, after suffering a sharp slowdown in the second half of 2018, measures such as manufacturing activity continued to look weak. Services have held up better in 2019 however.

Fund manager comment

Following the FTSE quarterly review in June, no stocks were added to or deleted from the Index, along with various changes in the shares in issue, free-floats, and RAFI factors. Two-way turnover totalled 5.70%.

Also during the quarter, but outside of the review, Gemalto’s weighting in the Index decreased, then it was deleted as a result of a tender offer.

Additionally, in April, FTSE updated a number of Weight Adjustment Factors (WAF) in the index. Two way turnover for this event totalled 0.68%.

Activity in the Fund reflected these changes.
