Economic overview

While there was no interest rate cut from the Federal Reserve over the quarter, policymakers softened their language on the interest rate outlook and Chairman Powell noted the case for easing monetary policy had grown stronger, and pledged to act as needed. Investors now fully expect the central bank to cut interest rates by a quarter of a percentage point when it meets in July, with further rate cuts seen as likely later in 2019.

Readings for US GDP for Q1 saw a healthy rate of annualised growth of 3.1%, ahead of expectations. However, there were mounting signs of a possible slowdown in the second quarter as global growth spluttered amidst ongoing trade tensions. Measures of services and manufacturing activity, as well as consumer spending, were muted.

While payroll numbers earlier in the quarter delivered positive surprises, expectations for June were missed by a wide margin and wage inflation remained subdued. Overall, unemployment is now at the lowest level seen for fifty years.

Fund manager comment

Following the FTSE quarterly review in June, 1 stock was added to and no stocks were deleted from the Index, along with various changes in the shares in issue and free-floats of the Index constituents. Two-way Index turnover totalled around 4.99%.

Also during the quarter, but outside of the review, Arris International was acquired for cash. Bemis was acquired by Amcor for shares.

Additionally, in April, FTSE updated a number of Weight Adjustment Factors (WAF) in the index. Two way turnover for this event totalled 0.66%.

Activity in the Fund reflected these changes.
