Barry Gill was appointed Head of Investments in November 2019 and is a member of the Asset Management Executive Committee.

He was Head of Active Equities within UBS Asset Management from early 2016 and, before that, joined O'Connor in 2012 as a member of the management group where he ran a concentrated long/short strategy.

Prior to joining O'Connor, Barry was head of the Fundamental Investment Group (Americas) for nearly six years within UBS Investment Bank, investing and trading the firm's principal capital.

Barry moved to the US in 2000 from London to rebuild the long / short principal investing effort within Equities following the creation of O'Connor as a hedge fund business.

In his five years in London at SBC and UBS, he was co-head of Pan-European Sector Trading, a proprietary book, and co-head of European Risk Program Trading for two years, preceded by two years as the head of the French trading book. Barry joined SBC's European derivatives desk as a graduate trainee in 1995.
