

Navigate political risks

Navigate political risk

Author: Sagar Khandelwal, Strategist, UBS Switzerland AG

- Why? (1) We believe a mid-single-digit percentage allocation to gold in a USD portfolio can diversify and hedge against political risk and inflation. (2) Gold demand should remain supported by the structural trend of central banks seeking to diversify their US dollar reserves. (3) Hedge funds can help navigate market volatility.
- Why now? (1) Although a ceasefire between Iran and Israel has been holding, geopolitical risks are still high—including over US tariffs as well as the war between Russia and Ukraine. Political worries have also been in focus, including concern over the independence of the Fed. (2) We expect gold prices to remain supported by declining real interest rates, a weaker US dollar, elevated geopolitical risk premia, and continued investor and central bank demand. (3) A modest allocation to select hedge funds can enhance portfolio resilience, take advantage of volatility, and smooth overall return outcomes.

Gold remains a valuable portfolio hedge, which can help investors navigate political uncertainty.

Gold

The precious metal has been the standout performer of 2025 so far. Purchases of exchange-traded funds (ETFs) have rebounded, alongside ongoing central bank demand. This has propelled gold ahead of the euro as the world's second largest reserve asset after the dollar, according to the European Central Bank. Although gold has pulled back from record highs amid optimism that the worst of the trade war is over, we remain constructive on bullion's long-term value. We expect gold prices to remain supported by declining real interest rates, a weaker US dollar, elevated geopolitical risk premia, and a structural shift in institutional buying. For example, central banks have accumulated over 1,000 tonnes of gold in each of the past three years—more than double the average annual pace of the previous decade, according to World Gold Council data.

Alternatives including hedge funds

With elevated geopolitical tensions, shifting US tariff policies, economic risks, and high equity market valuations, adding alternative assets including hedge funds as diversifiers may make sense. Hedge funds' ability to go long and short, adjust exposures dynamically, and target specific dislocations—rather than purely chase market directionality or beta—positions them well for current conditions, in our view. If policy shocks and cross-asset volatility persist, hedge funds should continue to benefit from a rich environment for active management and alpha generation. Strategies such as global macro, low-net equity long/short, and multi-strategy funds can further enhance resilience and improve risk-adjusted returns. Investors should be aware of the various risks and drawbacks when investing in alternatives, including illiquidity, limited transparency, and the use of leverage.

Generic investment research – Risk information:

This publication is for your information only and is not intended as an offer, or a solicitation of an offer, to buy or sell any investment or other specific product. The analysis contained herein does not constitute a personal recommendation or take into account the particular investment objectives, investment strategies, financial situation and needs of any specific recipient. It is based on numerous assumptions. Different assumptions could result in materially different results. Certain services and products are subject to legal restrictions and cannot be offered worldwide on an unrestricted basis and/or may not be eligible for sale to all investors. All information and opinions expressed in this document were obtained from sources believed to be reliable and in good faith, but no representation or warranty, express or implied, is made as to its accuracy or completeness (other than disclosures relating to UBS). All information and opinions as well as any forecasts, estimates and market prices indicated are current as of the date of this report, and are subject to change without notice. Opinions expressed herein may differ or be contrary to those expressed by other business areas or divisions of UBS as a result of using different assumptions and/or criteria. UBS may utilise artificial intelligence tools ("AI Tools") in the preparation of this document. Notwithstanding any such use of AI Tools, this document has undergone human review.

In no circumstances may this document or any of the information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes (i) valuation or accounting purposes; (ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or (iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees. By receiving this document and the information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or otherwise rely on any of the information for any of the above purposes. UBS and any of its directors or employees may be entitled at any time to hold long or short positions in investment instruments referred to herein, carry out transactions involving relevant investment instruments in the capacity of principal or agent, or provide any other services or have officers, who serve as directors, either to/for the issuer, the investment instrument itself or to/for any company commercially or financially affiliated to such issuers. At any time, investment decisions (including whether to buy, sell or hold securities) made by UBS and its employees may differ from or be contrary to the opinions expressed in UBS research publications. Some investments may not be readily realizable since the market in the securities is illiquid and therefore valuing the investment and identifying the risk to which you are exposed may be difficult to quantify. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS, into other areas, units, divisions or affiliates of UBS. Futures and options trading is not suitable for every investor as there is a substantial risk of loss, and losses in excess of an initial investment may occur. Past performance of an investment is no guarantee for its future performance. Additional information will be made available upon request. Some investments may be subject to sudden and large falls in value and on realization you may receive back less than you invested or may be required to pay more. Changes in foreign exchange rates may have an adverse effect on the price, value or income of an investment. The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this report may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other constituencies for the purpose of gathering, synthesizing and interpreting market information.

Different areas, groups, and personnel within UBS Group may produce and distribute separate research products independently of each other. For example, research publications from CIO are produced by UBS Global Wealth Management. UBS Global Research is produced by UBS Investment Bank. Research methodologies and rating systems of each separate research organization may differ, for example, in terms of investment recommendations, investment horizon, model assumptions, and valuation methods. As a consequence, except for certain economic forecasts (for which UBS CIO and UBS Global Research may collaborate), investment recommendations, ratings, price targets, and valuations provided by each of the separate research organizations may be different, or inconsistent. You should refer to each relevant research product for the details as to their methodologies and rating system. Not all clients may have access to all products from every organization. Each research product is subject to the policies and procedures of the organization that produces it. Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit UBS's ability to participate in or to advise on certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with the Client's investment objectives. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by UBS, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.
