Turn excess 529 funds into your kid's retirement nest egg

3 June 2026, 09:40 UTC, written by UBS Editorial Team

Unlock new financial possibilities and kickstart the retirement savings of your children or grandchildren. Thanks to enhancements to 529 college savings plans, qualified distributions now offer even more flexibility. Most notably, you can potentially roll over remaining balances in these plans into the beneficiary's Roth IRA.

This is how it works:

- You may only roll over 529 funds to a Roth IRA in the 529 beneficiary's name.
- This option is available for 529 accounts that have been open for 15 or more years.
- Annual rollover amounts cannot exceed the lesser of earned income or the annual IRA contribution limits (2026 limit: $7,500), reduced by any IRA contributions made for that year.
- The lifetime maximum that can be rolled over is $35,000 per 529 beneficiary.
- Amounts contributed to the 529 in the past five years and their earnings are ineligible to be rolled over.
- The beneficiary must have earned income from employment at least equal to the amount rolled over from the 529 to the Roth IRA.
- Modified Adjusted Gross Income (MAGI) limits that restrict contributions to a Roth IRA do not apply to 529-to-Roth IRA rollovers.

This educational report has been prepared by UBS Financial Services, Inc. Please see important disclaimers and disclosures at the end of the document.

- Not all states recognize this federal law change and may tax the 529 distribution at the state level.

A $35,000 Roth IRA balance for a young adult can significantly jump start their retirement savings. Assuming a 5% annual rate of return, $35,000 for a 25-year-old will be worth $250,000 by the time they turn 65, even if they never contribute anything else to the account.

Frequently asked questions and answers:

How do I start the process?

You should contact your 529 provider and request a distribution for a 529 to Roth rollover.

What is the tax implication of rolling 529 balances to a Roth IRA?

The 529 withdrawal is both tax-free and penalty-free at the federal level if the rollover meets all the requirements in the SECURE 2.0 Act. State tax treatment depends on the particular state you live in and may vary from federal law. Be sure to contact your 529 provider to inquire about state laws. You will receive a 1099-Q just like any other distribution.

Can I change the beneficiary and do this multiple times?

The IRS hasn't provided guidance to this question, so it is unclear whether beneficiary changes, owner changes and/or program manager changes will restart the 15-year clock. Therefore, the conservative approach would be for you not make such changes until the IRS issues guidance.

Who is eligible to roll over a 529 to a Roth IRA?

The 529 can only be rolled over to a Roth IRA for the 529 beneficiary. Account owners are not eligible to roll over to their own Roth IRA (unless the account owner is also the 529 beneficiary).

Can the entire $35,000 lifetime maximum be rolled over in one year?

No, the maximum amount a 529 beneficiary can roll over in any particular year is the lesser of their earned income or the annual IRA contribution limit (which for 2026 is $7,500 for individuals under age 50), minus the amount of their traditional or Roth IRA contribution for that year.

Are there any income limits for the beneficiary?

No, the Roth IRA income limits (AGI) are not applicable to a 529 to Roth IRA rollover.

Can a 529 to Roth IRA rollover be done in-kind?

No. Assets in the 529 must be liquidated and cash contributed to the Roth IRA.

Who is responsible for tracking the $35,000 lifetime limit per beneficiary and other requirements?

The 529 account owner and the 529 beneficiary will be responsible for ensuring that the lifetime limit is not exceeded and that the other requirements have been met.

What else can I use 529s for?

Besides rolling over to a Roth IRA, remember that you can use it to pay for undergraduate or graduate tuition and fees, room and board, K-12 expenses, vocational schools, repay student loans, pass it on to the next generation and more. Be sure to talk to your financial advisor about all the restrictions around each of these distribution options.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: This terminology refers to definitions in the UBS Sustainable Investing Framework and does not refer or relate to any product-specific regulatory labelling regime or naming conventions. Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit UBS's ability to participate in or to advise on certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with the Client's investment objectives. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by UBS, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.

Cautionary statement regarding forward-looking statements. This report contains statements that constitute “forward-looking statements”, including but not limited to statements relating to the current and expected state of the securities market and capital market assumptions. While these forward-looking statements represent our judgments and future expectations concerning the matters discussed in this document, a number of risks, uncertainties, changes in the market, and other important factors could cause actual developments and results to differ materially from our expectations. These factors include, but are not limited to (1) the extent and nature of future developments in the US market and in other market segments; (2) other market and macro-economic developments, including movements in local and international securities markets, credit spreads, currency exchange rates and interest rates, whether or not arising directly or indirectly from the current market crisis; (3) the impact of these developments on other markets and asset classes. UBS is not under any obligation to (and expressly disclaims any such obligation to) update or alter its forward-looking statements whether as a result of new information, future events, or otherwise.

About Our Wealth Management Services

As a firm providing wealth management services to clients, UBS Financial Services, Inc is registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) as an investment adviser and a broker-dealer, offering both investment advisory and brokerage services. Investment advisory services and brokerage services are separate and distinct, differ in material ways and are governed by different laws and separate agreements. It is important that investors understand the ways in which UBS conducts business, that they carefully read the agreements and disclosures that UBS provides to them about the products or services offered. A small number of UBS financial advisors are not permitted to offer advisory services to you, and can only work with investors directly as UBS broker-dealer representatives. Your financial advisor will let you know if this is the case and, if you desire advisory services, will refer you to another financial advisor who can help you. UBS' agreements and disclosures will inform investors about whether we and our financial advisors are acting in our capacity as an investment adviser or broker-dealer. For more information, please see www.ubs.com/workingwithus. In providing financial planning services, UBS may act as a broker-dealer or investment adviser, depending on whether we charge a fee for the service. The nature and scope of the services are detailed in the documents and reports provided to you as part of the service.
